

Misato Nasu

2122 Algaroba Street, Apartment F, Honolulu, Hawaii 96826 | (808) 321-4646 | misatona@hawaii.edu

EDUCATION

|                                          |                |
|------------------------------------------|----------------|
| NATIONAL UNIVERSITY, SAN DIEGO, CA       | SEPTEMBER 2024 |
| MASTER OF SCIENCE IN DATA SCIENCE        | 3.80 GPA       |
| UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII, HONOLULU, HI       | MAY 2022       |
| Bachelor of Science in Animal Science    | 3.38 GPA       |
| • Melvin T. Tokoyama Endowed Scholarship |                |

PROJECTS

|                                                                                                                                               |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| SQL Data Mart Design (ANA660 Advanced SQL Programming)                                                                                        |
| • Developed a star schema with indexing and complex SQL queries to optimize performance and reveal trends.                                    |
| Association Between Depression and Marital Status (Analytics 625: Categorical Data Methods, SAS)                                              |
| • Analyzed 2014 BRFSS data (443k participants) to study links between depression and marital status using chi-square and logistic regression. |
| Alzheimer's Detection and Severity Classification (Master's Thesis, Python)                                                                   |
| • Collaborated on a CNN-based tool for Alzheimer's diagnosis, analyzing MRI scans and benchmarking against SVMs and standard methods.         |

WORK EXPERIENCE

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| Business Intelligence Analyst I, Hawaii National Bank, Honolulu, HI (Full- time)                                                                                                                                 | August 2025 – Present          |
| • Builds and optimizes SQL queries, financial models, and Power BI dashboards to deliver profitability, risk, and performance insights.                                                                          |                                |
| • Automates and validates data workflows to improve reporting accuracy and efficiency.                                                                                                                           |                                |
| • Collaborates with cross-functional teams on budgeting, forecasting, and migrations to ensure timely project delivery.                                                                                          |                                |
| Research Statistician I, State of Hawaii DBEDT, Honolulu, HI (Full-time)                                                                                                                                         | September 2024 -August 2025    |
| • Surveyed business owners to collect data and accurately assign NAICS codes for industry classification, ensuring proper integration into the Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages (QCEW) reporting system. |                                |
| • Conducted surveys, maintained databases, and collaborated with employers to verify and estimate employment and wage data.                                                                                      |                                |
| • Verify data and numerical accuracy in Excel for the Bureau of Labor Statistics program                                                                                                                         |                                |
| Business Research Analyst, International Data Group, Honolulu, HI (Full-time)                                                                                                                                    | September 2022 – November 2023 |
| • Managed and expanded global contact databases, ensuring data quality and timely lead delivery for international campaigns.                                                                                     |                                |
| • Leveraged advanced Excel functions (VLOOKUP, conditional formatting, filters) to streamline data extraction, cleansing, and analysis.                                                                          |                                |
| • Collaborated with cross-functional teams and used bilingual (English/Japanese) skills to enhance data processes and deliver high-quality insights.                                                             |                                |

SKILLS

|                        |                                                                              |
|------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Programming Languages: | R, SAS, SQL, Python                                                          |
| Computer Software:     | Microsoft Word, Excel, PowerPoint, Google Docs, Google Sheets, Google Slides |
| Languages:             | Japanese (fluent)                                                            |

CERTIFICATIONS AND CERTIFICATES

|                                                                                 |      |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Google Career Certificate- Data Analytics                                       | 2021 |
| Grassroots 9v9, 11v11 In-person Coaching License, US Soccer Coaching Department | 2021 |